New dates, global collaboration and expanded education announced for the 2024 edition

Toronto, November 1, 2024. Dates, updated show floor presence and special programming bring new energy for the 2024 edition.

Waste and Recycling Expo Canada (CWRE) returns with newly scheduled dates and a revitalized format. This event is set to re-energize the industry and provide a platform for companies, brands, and industry professionals to explore ground-breaking solutions and create valuable business relationships. Waste and Recycling Expo Canada will return to the International Centre in Mississauga, November 6 – 7, 2024.

Kristy Meade, Vice President, Technical Shows, Messe Frankfurt, Inc., expressed her excitement about the upcoming event, saying, "CWRE 2024 is not just about the future of Canada's waste and recycling industry, but also its role on the global stage. Our reach across the globe is extensive and we are thrilled to bring international leaders to the show, fostering a dynamic environment for innovation and collaboration."

Not just new, not just more, better.

Addressing the post-pandemic challenges of the event, the evolving needs of the industry, our exhibitors and attendees, CWRE 2024 is bringing new interactive experiences, more equipment and machinery and more education to achieve even greater results. This edition of CWRE will focus on comprehensive growth and innovation. Here's a preview of what attendees and exhibitors can look forward to:

- Innovation Hub: An area where exhibitors can showcase their latest technologies, products, and services that drive sustainability and efficiency in the waste and recycling sector.
- Global Symposium: A notable presentation featuring discussions and panels with international experts, sharing insights on emerging trends, circular economy strategies, and sustainable solutions from around the world.
- Sustainability Showcase: A dedicated area highlighting sustainability and eco-friendly initiatives will emphasize the importance of environmental responsibility and the role of the waste and recycling industry in protecting the planet.
- Expert-Led Workshops: Practical, hands-on workshops will be available for attendees to gain insights and knowledge from industry experts on key challenges and opportunities.

- Networking Beyond Borders: Enhanced networking opportunities will facilitate cross-border collaboration, providing a platform to build relationships and partnerships with industry players from various countries.

The two-day exhibition attracts waste management professionals, recycling experts, government representatives, and sustainability advocates from around the world seeking advancements and industry trends. It promises to be the focal point for innovation, international partnership building, and the exchange of ideas that will drive the future of the waste and recycling industry.

Meade continued to share her enthusiasm for the revitalized event, saying, "CWRE has always been a place for industry players to connect, learn, and innovate. In 2024 we are raising the bar, and we are confident that the modifications will solidify our position as a leader in the waste & recycling community."
